The Iraqis now have troops and tanks along the Khorramshahr waterfront and their armour is stretched along the west bank of the Karun river. Although the harbour is secure, the centre of the city is still a battleground.

Sharp fall in money supply raises hopes of cut in interest rate

Figures showing that the rate of monetary growth fell back sharply in September were hailed yesterday by Mr Angu-Maude, Paymaster General and the Cabiner's chief spokesman, as a sign that the Government's policy was working. In the City the figures were taken as confirmation that Britain was on course for a cut in interest rates within the next lew necks.

Just how soon that cut will come remains unclear. While welcoming the Bank of England's indication that the money supply grew by 0.5 per-centage point to 0.75 percentage point, in September, Mr Maude added that a fall in interest rates would have to wait until the Government was quite sure that the money supply was "firmly under control".

He said at the Conservative Party conference in Brighton: The Government has always said that once the distortions of the money supply figures caused by the removal of the 'corset' controls had worked out of the statistics, the underimprovement would lyinz ecome apparent. "The latest figures show that this forecast has already been realized. They are very en-couraging. They show that the Government's policy of restrict-ing the growth of the money supply, in order to get inflation under control is working.

The rate of inflation falling, and we hope the fall will continue. This is good will continue. This is good news for everyone. The high levels of interest rates are making life very difficult for businessmen and home buyers

"They have been necessary as a temporary measure. Once we are quite sure the money supply is firmly under control, we can all look forward to the prospect of some relief."

In the City the most encouraging aspect of the latest figures was seen as the marked ecline in credit demand from the private sector. The main High Street banks put the underlying rate of increase in low as £150m last month compared with monthly figures of £700m-£300m earlier in the year. The Bank of England was quick to point out that one month's figures should not be taken in isolation. The monthly figures for bank lending have proved volatile this year and the authorities will be particularly keen to have some idea of what has been happening in October before they feel convinced that the corner has been turned.

Although figures for October will not be published until early November, the Bank will be getting a reasonable picture of what is going on from unpublished weekly figures and its informal contacts with the banking

If these preliminary indica-tions prove sufficiently en-couraging, then many in the City would expect to see a reduction in the Bank of England's minimum lending rate by the end of this month. That view is not unanimous. Some financial market analysts feel that the Government is in no mood to be burried.

They suggest that the September money supply figures may not be as good as they look because they take in a very large half-yearly payment of petroleum revenue tax, paid by the oil companies to the the oil companies to the Exchequer on September 1.

There is a feeling in some quarters that the Government may not wish to alter interest rates until it has decided on its new set of monetary terraper. new set of monetary targets—due to be announced in mid-November—and assessed the implications of any changes it may wish to make to the present methods of monetary

The Government's original target had been that sterling M3 should grow at an annual rate of 7-11 per cent from February, 1980, to April, 1981. In the seven months to September, sterling M3 has grown by almost 13 per cent, but the figure has been swollen by distortions by the ending in June of the "corset" controls on the hanking system.

about the remarkable cost savings Vauxhall fleet operators have made?

For instance, in the normal fleet life of a Cavalier, some operators save £200 £300 on maintenance alone over Cortinas. And one large operator saves £700 per car (1:96p per mile) on total costs by buying Cavaliers. Worth thinking about.

Do you know about the Cavalier LS?

The new 4 door LS 1600 and 2000 Cavalier saloons are designed specifically to appeal to fleet operators and company car users. IS gives you a really top of the line specification at a price below the equivalent Cortina Check the spec yourself.

Do you know about the really intelligent deals you can make with your Vauxhall dealer?

Short term price cutting is one way of selling cars, but fleet operators have longer term concerns. Let one of our dealers talk to you about the kind of sensible, realistic package they can put together for you. It might be guaranteed buy back prices, special interest rates, service deals or whatever they can tailor to your needs.

Do you know that the Carlton estate has one of the biggest load capacities you can get?

With the rear seat down, the Carlton can. swallow 76.2 cubic feet of load.* And carry over half a ton. That's even more than a big Volvo. Carlton can also top 100mph and get to 60mph in 13.6 secs ** Not bad at all. And we also think Carlton is rather handsome.

Do you know how up-to-date the Vauxhall range now is?

Vauxhall have launched 10 entirely new cars in the last 5 years, making the range one of the most modern, sophisticated fleets in the country. Do you know the value of Vauxhall's Masterhire Leasing system?

Many fleet operators have found that the Vauxhall Masterhire Leasing system can be a highly effective method of controlling costs as well as improving cash flow Ring (0582) 21122 Ext. 8332 for further information.

Do you know that all Vaux halls are praised for their sheer driver appeal?

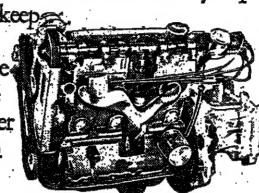

We see no reason why company car drivers shouldn't enjoy their driving. All Vauxhalls have excellent handling and precise light steering.

As an example, 'Autocar' stated that Cavalier had the "... best overall handling and steering by quite along way. "in a group test.

Do you know Astra's engine is one of the most advanced in the world?

Astra's 1300 engine produces 75 bhp but still gives 47.1 mpg at 56 mph. Some really advanced thinking has gone in to making the engine a great performer, and a very simple one to run. For instance it has hydraulic tappets, which eliminate the need for clearance adjustment and help the engine stay in perfect tune. Less service time and they help your company cars keep excellent fuel economy And the engine is proven. There are already over a quarter of a million of them around today.

Do you know that Astra's clutch orgearbox can be changed without removing the engine?

This factor eliminates one of the big worries fleet operators had about front wheel drive cars. In fact. Astra can be cheaper to run and maintain than many rear wheel drive cars. It's easy to see why 'What Car?' magazine voted Astra 'Car of the Year'

Do you know that Chevette has been in the top ten since its introduction?

The ever economical, reliable Chevette has consistently beaten many of its more immediately glamorous rivals. Simple, inexpensive, eminently practical and very nice to drive.

Do you know Vauxhall are getting more and more fleet customers?

Vauxhall's penetration into the fleet market has been steadily increasing. More and more fleet managers are working out costs and finding that Vauxhall's make a lot of sense.

Mr Fowler said the debate had been very realistic, which was in stark contrast to the other two party conferences.

The Liberal Party had adopted a transport policy that so captured the enthusiasm of Mr David Penhaligon, the party's spokesman, that he had said he would resign if every called upon to support it. The Labour Party adopted such a wide range of policies that half the party was threatening to resign rather than support them.

The challenge for the Government was to set out to the public the new course of action it was taking.

Good luck to those coach operators emulating Sir Freddie Laker on the ground. In the 1980 Act all the measures necessary to denationalize the National Freight Corporation had been taken. He would keep in the department of transport only those functions that it was essential for government to carry out. Consequently the number of staff working for the department would be reduced by more than 30 per cent. The biggest cuts in road invest-

Mr Malcolm Fraser, the Auspendulum would be swinging tralian Prime Minister, indicated today that he would ask his supporters in the Senate tomorrow in the weekly magazine. The Rulletin ours Labour to block supply of funds to a Labour government again if he found it necessary.

It was his action in doing this in 1975 that led to the dismissal of the Whitlam Government and the greatest constitutional crisis in Australia's history.

At that time, although Labour was in power, the Liberal-Country Party coalition controlled the Senate. The blocking of supply, initiated by Mr Fraser who was then opposition leader led to Sir John Kerr, the Governor-General, dismissing Mr Gough Whitlam (who had refused to call an election), installing Mr Fraser as caretaker Prime Minister and calling an election.

McGovern: fight to hold the prairies

From Patrick Brogan Sioux Falls, Oct 7.

Mr George McGovern, the Senate's hest known liberard is fighting for his political life bere this year. South Dakota is a deeply conservative state and a deeply conservative state and the winds of conservatism are blowing strongly across the ordines and may carry Mr McGovern away with them.

McGovern away with them.

He is running for reelection again, spending $1.2m on the campaign and assiduously showing himself at every meeting in every village in South Dakota. His challenger is Mr James Abdnor, who has been one of the state's two congressmen for the past eight years and has therefore managed to build up his own organization and his nwn popularity in that time. He also will spend over $1m.

In 1974, which was a Democratic year anyway, Mr McGovern was rejected without much difficulty against an unknown former prisoner of war in North Vietnam. This is likely to be a Republican year and Mr Abdnot is a more formidable opponent. Furthermore, Senator McGovern is at the top of the conservative "hit" list senators whom the Model Majority and other such organizations hope to defeat this year. such organizations hope to defeat this year.

The National Conservative Political Action Committee (NCPAC) spent $160,000 on attacking Senator McGovern here in etelevision and newspaper. One of the issues that the conservatives are using against Senator McGovern is abortion. "I baven't seen the play, indeed I had to sign an agree-ment not to see it while we were shooting. But as far as I am concerned Treves is basic; ally a good man; I think this comes our at the moment in the film when he actually questions his own morives in helping the Elephant Man. It should be remembered too that Merrick himself had the quality of often bringing out the best in other people: he had plenty to be bitter about and yet he never showed that bitterness. "No, the character who gave us most trouble was the travel-ling showman. Beyrs, as we call him in the film. I wanted him to be the symbol of Merrick's nast and we began by making him too evil; when we sen; the script to Freddie Jones asking him to take the part he returned it saying the character was too black. He was right and we rewrote it. Since then some more has come to light in the book by Michael Howell and Peter Ford about the skowman, Tom Norman, who exhibited the Elephant Man, and perhaps he wasn't so bad after all.

The Elephant Man and in particular that in The Los Angeles Times, by Charles Champlin, to whom the industry pays, a good deal of attention, suggest that David Lynch will not be short of future assignments. # Where private help is too costly for the health service

Dr Gerard Vaughan's exhortation to health authorities to contract out more of their work to the private sector seems to have fallen on wayward ears. It is now three months since the Minister for Health asked both regional and area health authorities to make more use of private firms both for clinical and non-clinical

A letter and draft circular was sent out A letter and draft circular was sent est by the Department of Health and Social Security on June 30 saying that they should take advantage of any possible contractual arrangements with the private sector and pointing out that they were no longer bound to use only non-graffit making organizations, such as religious hospices, for contracted out medical services.

But the suggestion has not been expensed with any degree of entirusiasm.

A review of T4 regional health authorities and three area health authorities and three area health authorities, carried out by The Titues, suggests that authorities are scentiaal about whether savings could be made in non-medical areas and whether using profit-medical areas of medical services would do anything other than gobble up cash they do not have.

The only degree of enthusiasm for increasing the use of private clinics came from the Marchester Area Health Authority. Mr Peter Foscer, the area administrator, thought there was considerable scope for an increase.

able scope for an increase.

A new private cluic, was opening in Manchester for open heart surgery which could be used to reduce the area's substantial waiting lists, while in return the area's hospitals could increase their screening services for the private sector on a profit-making basis, he said.

Elsewhere authorities felt that waiting lists were surable the market of sach able scope for an increase.

lists were usually the result of cash shortages and such shortages precluded, making use of expensive private facilities to reduce them.

Many authorines pointed out that over the next two years they were likely to be heavily preoccupied with the reorganization of the health service and the setting up of the new district health authorities, which were due to come into operation by April, 1982. The North East Thames' by April, 1982. The North East Thames' Regional Health Authority, in particular, thought that reorganization would prevent any other major initiative.

The predominant attitude of most authorities was that while they did not have any philosophical objections to using the private sector more, when they had looked into it in the past they had found that private contractors would not save, them money.

Mr Leslie O'Connor, treasurer of the South West Thames Regional Health from independent and former direct grant schools, yet those schools account for only.

29 per cent of pupils gaining three or more "A" levels and 7 per cent of the total school population.

"This", the Labour Party says in its latest, report on private schools, "is-clearly unfair to a large number of potential applicants from the maintained sector and has produced an eilte which in the view of many commentators is profoundly ignorant of and remote from the mainstream of British society.

The report makes clear that a future

Labour Government would expect Oxbridge to select applicants on the same basis as all other universities. If it was found that "a disproportionate number" of students were being drawn number "of students were being drawn from the private sector, it recommends that the Government grant to Oxbridge should be reduced.

It is in part to counter such criticisms as these that both Oxford and Cambridge have been taking a particularly close look at their selection procedures. It is also, their selection procedures in a land however, partly out of self-interest an attempt to make themselves more efficient in tapping the pool of highest ability, and therefore more (academically) elirist, not less. Neither university thought much of the Robbins Committee's comment in 1963 that: "It is not a good thing that Oxford and Cambridge should attract too high a proportion of the country's best brains and become more and more exclusively composed of a certain kind of intellectual eite." In fact, through their efforts since then to simplify their admissions procedures and to attract more candidates from maintained schools, both have become even more highly selective. Of this year's entry, 83 per cent at Cambridge and 72 per cent at Oxford had "A" levels with Authority, said that investigations into using private contractors for laundry services revealed that ther would cost 21 times as much as existing services and would not take heavily solled linen.

Mr Kenneth Purt, treesurer of Trent Regional Health Authority, said that when he looked at private catering contractors he found that they could not provide the many complex diets and special requirements that were needed as cheaply as the ments that were needed as cheaply as the public sector.

The trend seams to be in the opposite direction over the last 20 years a number of authorities have tried using private catering firms but have abandoned the experiment. South Western Regional Health Authority said that during the 1960s a number of hospitals in Dovon and Cornwall used catering companies to manage their services. "In some instances and for a period if worked well but the experience was that the success depended on the ability of the particular manager put in by the catering company. We had examples at first of very good managers but when they were changed, it did not work. "We now have a situation where none of dur hospitals are using commercial firms."

The West Midlands Regional Health.
Authority also used to contract out some of its capering but no longer does so because it found it unsatisfactory. The South Western Region tried a private con-one year at the university.

2. That the present entrance examins to possibly just one paper in the candi-date's specialist subject. (The Franks described the special entrance exam as the main stumbling block to a more representative intake of students, and recommended a common entrance examination for all universities.)

3. That colleges be permitted to accept an unlimited number of candidates of exactor for laundry services for haspitals in Bristol bur the firm went our of business business.

For laundry services, many regional health outhorizes have recently built large new laundries to handle the washing from a group of hospitals, instead of relying on small imprivated hospital laundries. Trent has just hull two large laundries and the Yorkshire Regional Health Authority is carrying out a rationalization review of lass service.

The Yorkshire authority did not look at whether the private sector could provide a laundry service more chemply but was convinced that it would not be as reliable. It was considered impossible that we could get guarantees of continuous service for the next five years for 24 hours at day. For laundry services, many regional vice for the next five years for 24 hours a day.

Manchester Area anthonic were forced to use commercial laiming during a strike two years ago and found them significantly thore empassive. Several authorities mentioned that such laindries laid down conditions about heavily solied them which mean that fired had to sluice sheets before sending them off.

Many authorities do favour private firms for cleaning their office space and catering for their office staff, because they feel this is the sort of area where commercial firms can operate effectively giving a troo or three hour a day service and relieving the authority of the seed to take on permanent staff for a part-time jub.

But for the kind of 24 hour a day work required in many areas of catering and cleaning, authorities thought their own staff could provide the cheepest and most flexible service.

Other objections made against any flexible service.

Other objections made against any wholesale change to the private sector were the hostility of the unions, the loss of a community spirit and the loss of control.

a community spair and the loss of centrol over staff.

Mr Malcolm Hobbs, area administrator for the Hertfardshire Area Health Authority, said that the loss of control was the crucial factor.

There is nothing worse than as trate sister who does not think her ward is being cleaned well anough. She does not want to know about the details of any contract drawn up with a private firm. She just wants it done properly.

Given that Dr Vaughan is heavily committed to the idea of a substantial switch to the private sector (the DHSS letter, says. The policy itself is firm and authorities should proceed with it henceforth.") It will be increasing to see what pressure he will bring to bear to ensure it is implemented.

The engine in question has quite a pedigree.

In the CSL coupé it helped BMW win the European Touring Car Championshipfour years in a row.

It was a performance however only really appreciated by racing drivers like Niki Lauda, Jacky Ickx and Hans Stuck, who discovered how with this engine, they could beat even 5 and 7 litre rivals.

Then for the MI racing car, the engine was developed still further. So, ultimately, it could produce 800 bhp from its six cylinders.

It seemed, however, that it was selfish to restrict such an engine just to the race track

So a 140 mph road version of the engine was developed for the 635 CSi coupé. ....

And its high speed performance is now accompanied by a remarkable low speed docility. If asked to, the vehicle will trickle along without protest at 1500 rpm in any gear, and then pull awaycleanly and strongly as soon as you open the throttle.

But its racing origins clearly show

As for the driver, this BMWs biomechanical design makes the most of his skills.

The driving position, for example, can be optimised by adjusting the seat for height, tilt, reach and rake.

And the controls and instruments are carefully sited to minimise the time gap

Alas, it's an experience no more than 595 people in Britain will be able to enjoy in 1980.

Our apologies: but we can't make our 635 CSi any faster.

Hunt shows the Mountjoy's success puts pressure on Griffiths

Ey Sydney Frisking:

Doug Mountjoy, the Welsh professional smooker champion, consolidated his position in the Champion for Champion tournament at the New London Thearre yesterday. He secured his third ruccessive victory by defeating Cliff Thorburn, of Canada, the world champion, by eight frames to one.

This victory puts more pressure on Terry Griffiths, whom Mountjoy simil has to play. While Mountjoy simil has to play. While Mountjoy is undefeated, Griffiths has lost a match, so if he beats Mountjoy he will need to do so convincingly. In the tase of a defor first place, the player who has seen more frame, will seed to defer the final.

Mountjoy is a fine touch player which a flair for break-building. In yesterday's match be quickly seized the opportunity created either by his own design or his opponent's mistakes. Mountjoy himself admitted that Thorburn had bad lack in the first frame. Mountjoy overhauled Thorburn, who had taken a substantial lead.

Mountjoy anade a sparkling break of 31 Mountjoy anade a sparkling break of 75 in the second frame, which Thorburn soon conceded. If he had made mistakes in it he could not have flow so in the next one, in which he did not por a ball, Mountjoy taking it with breaks of 47 and 66.

However, as the Pakistam leosemed, it was only Awad's fast reflexes and determination that kept him in the game. The second seed, Zamen, was forced to five games in a 62 minute struggle against the highly talented 16-year-old, Gehangir Khan before wimming 5-9, 9-4, 9-0, 7-9, 9-2. Khan showed a touch well beyond his years and surprised the highly tancied Zaman by taking the first game. It took 15 minutes and both players produced a fine mixture of curs and drives.

The occasion was the running of the Playboy Bookmakers Frenchie Nicholson Appreciation Nursery Bandicap, in honour of apprentice jockeys. The scantily clad young ladies hopping about trying to keep warm were there to assist the great man present the prize to the winning jockey.

There could hardly have been the prise to the winning jockey. There could hardly have been a more appropriate result. Nicholson has produced a string of outstanding riders over the years—Pat Eddery, Tony Murray, Paul Cook, Richard. Fox and Walter Swinburh are names that spring readily to mind. # Henbit should be fit to run next season

It is good to know that so many of this season's top class three-year-olds will be in action again next year. Robert Sangster has already announced that betroine of last Sunday's Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe, will be throwing down the gauntler to all and sundry in 1981. Now Dick Hero is hopeful that Henbit, the Derby winner, will join his stable companion. Prince Bee, in an onslaught on the big middle-distance laught on the big middle-distance and he is trotting out sound every day." Ela-Mana-Moy's handler said. "The decision is of course up to the owners, but it is my guess that the colt will be fit to race again next year." Henbit's early departure from the scene after his accident at Epsom was a blow. Mrs Arpad Plesch's three-year-old would have won the Derby more easily but for breaking down a furlong and a half from home. As his nearest yearm, Master Willie, went no to capture and he is trotting out sound every day", Ela-Mana-Mou's handler from home. As his nearest victim, Master Willie, went in 10 capture the Benson and Hedges Gold Cup at York, Hennit might well have wound up the season as Europe's hampion three-year-old hut triamping three-year-old but for his mishap.

These attacking policies do nothing but good for the breed, for it is only by testing the best of one generation against the best of the next that a proper selection of stallons is assured. Fla-Mana-Mou's successful four-year-old career established Simon Weinstock's Pricairn colt as a fough reliable racehorse of the highest calibre; and as the best made representative of the Peningo line left in these Islands, the winner of the King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Diamond Stakes now seems assured of heavy patronage at Tim Rogers's Simmonstown stud.

There will be strength in depth in the four-year-old department next year. Moorestyle and Sharpo, the two best sprinters in Europe, will remain in training with Robert Armstrong and Jeremy Tree 125-pecticely, and Tree will still have charge of Known Fact, the hero of that epic duel with Kris at Ascot. No decision will be taken about Known Fact's participation in the Champion Stakes until after the Beckhampton trainer's return from Beckhampton trainer's return from Goff's sales. However, the in Reality coit is in rude health de-pite his recent exertions. Known plte his recent exertions. Known Fact shows no sign of having had too hard a race in the Queen Elizabeth Il Stakes, and provided he remains in good heart in the meantime it must be a shade of odds on that Khaled Abdullah's three-year-old will be in the line-up for our last Group I race of the season for older borses on Saturday week. Saturday week. With the yearling sales in full swing, all eyes will be on the first oppearance of Ghadeer in the Duke of Edinburgh Stokes at

This year's bumper crop has confounded certain traditional wisdoms about the effects of the weather on agricultural yields and the gloomy predictions made earlier in the year. The exceptionally dry spell during April and May and then the cold wet period during June and July caused worried formers to voice fears of larging damage. of lasting damage.

The warmer weather since August brought crops on apace and the occasional bouts of beavy rain have not seriously delayed the harvest. All this spees to show that despite significant prolonged fluctuations in the weather British agriculture is robust and capable of shaking off all but the worst extremes of the weather.

Clearly the crop yield must be a consequence of the weather during the growing season. But the way in which the combination of variations in temperature, rainfall, humidity and sunshine affect

In any, case, as the United States deputy Sectorary of State, Mr Warren Christopher recently observed, the Russians have some 80,000 troops tied down in a very difficult war in Afghanistan, and are not likely to want to take on similar or even worse is far from clear.

Most vitally affected are the seeking influence in Tehran, mericans, who have long been even apparently to the extent This does not prevent their having previously armed Iraq-of offering Iran military aid. But all offers of Soviet help have been rudely rebuffed.

What seems to be happening, in fact, is that the local powers, including not only Iran and Afghanistan but also Turkey and Iraq, are increasingly defy-ing both the superpowers, and making it extremely difficult for either Moscow or Washingsaid to lie. Under the joint impact of Islamic resurgence and Arab nationalism, the Middle East states are forcidg the great powers to take another look at the map.

There are constant factors in this changing picture. Syria, for example, seems firmly committed to the Soviet camp, while the Israeli-Egyptian rapproachement is likely to remain the cornerstone of American policy in the Middle East, But like the Gulf war, the coup in Turkey demonstrates that, in the Middle East, no certainties are accrain for very long.

It seems from official statements made in Peking that the trial of Madaine Map and her ifellow members of the Cang of Four, together with a number, of other, mainly milliony, figures, is soon to take place by now, therefore, the full stript will have been written and the participants thoroughly rehearsed; the judges will have been told what sentences are to be used in passing them, defence counsel passivity them, defence counse, will be practising the caulogue of abuse they are to hurl at their clients, and, the defendants themselves are no doubt being.

clients, and the defendants themselves are no doubt being heard, at least deily and yossibly oftener, in the recitation of their confessions. Comparatively unpractised in this sort of drame, the Chinese authorities are mixing no risks of a litch on opening might, no foreign journalists are to be allowed to attend, and the court will be filled with tepresentatives of the masses. The sulle of the accused has effective, which is only logical. I suppose even though it seems that last minute revisions to the script are being trade, there being, as David Bonavia delicately put it in his report from the Chinese capital last week. Some confinion as to what lays exactly the defendants are being tried under

And now it behaves me to drop this tone of banageois banter and ask plainly; has the world really got to go through this filthy nonsense again. Was not the appetite for judicial proceedings made of forture, lies and guilibility fully slaked before the war in Moscow and after it in Prague, Sofia and Budapest, among other places where the wirt of Stalin and his helps ran? Can the present raters of China not simply have their eminent victims quietly killed and quietly buried, in stead of going through the horrible and disgusting farce of a "rial" the velidity of which they can hardly expect even Messas Felix Greene and Neville Maxwell to endorse?

Within these questions there is another, which I have asked repeatedly, without getting anything like a satisfactory answer; even Vladimir Bukovsky could not really explain it to me Look again at David Bonavir's dispatch, and barken to Mr Zeng Tao, spokesman for via's dispatch, and barkes to Mr Zeng Tao, spokesman for the Chinese leaders, giving out the news of the forthcoming

The question is: why do the authorities in totalizarian states say things which are not only untrue, but which every hearer or reader of them, including their most loyal and uncritical their most loyal and uncritical supporters, knows to be un-rrue? We have just had a per-fect example of this weird phenomenon over the Polish cristic everything said by the Polish leaders from beginning to end consisted of lies, and everybody in Poland, from the dissident leaders, laughing in their rulers' faces, to the most docile party back, fervently wishing that the Russians would

Defendants in the countries of the Soviet Empire are now allowed so plead not guilty. Everything is done beforeband to break them. of course, and every now, and then a defendant does indeed admit to crimes he not only has not committed but could not. But this nothique now works only rarely; I believe the reason is that communism's infilicial victims now know that they are not alone, that they have a large and growing number of supporters, even though most of them are silent, in their own country (in the almost the entire population, which is why such triels are still much raver there than inthe Soviet Union), and that their plicht is vary likely to be publicized abroad. So it is to be Darkness at Noon for China now, when not even Brezhnev would dare to stage such wicked and shody theatricals any longer. And I dare say that somewhere in the western world they will find re-western world they will find re-viewers to give the show a good viewers to give the show a good notice, hacks who will declare that Madame Mao and her accomplices were fairly tried, justly convicted and fittingly purished. As I say the Chinese rillers have basned all foreigners from the trial (mough we may yet see that rule relaxed in favour of a back or two) but there will no doubt ritle released in favour of a back or two), but there will no doubt be an official account of it, which will be oring sufficient.

Besides, even if the trial of Madame Mao is universally condenued (and let no one fall into the trap of thinking of her and her associates as freedom loving dissidents, for they clearly represented Maoian at its maddes and most impleasely cruel, and the only reason they are and the only reason they are going on trial is that they lost the power struggle that fol-lowed Mao's death), the feeling lowed Mao's death), the results behind the condemnation will fade buickly. How many people in this country know without being reminded that the rulers of China still arm, support and praise the remnants of the Poi Poi regims in Cambodia?

*A suppose I have myself answered the question I saked: yes, the world must indeed so through this fifthy nonsense again. Because China's present incough this theny nonsense again. Because China's present release for his crimes (if only, because most of them participated in the crimes at one period or another), they intend to go through the ritual prosecution of those who at the end were closest to him in thought said deed; because they dimnor admit that China was ruled by a Gang of Five, they are to prosecure a Gang of Four. And the borrible and idiot nature of the fudicial proceedings involved may be deduced from the original accusarious levelled at Madame Man when she was accested; that she watched private showings of The Sound of Music, and liked her welon hot.

This may not agree with local experience as country-wide figures disguise variations from one part of the country to another. This is important as it is not uncommon for a bad summer in, say, the southeast to be matched by better than average condi-tions in the north and west.

Examination of the national statistics for the yields for cereals and root crops going back to 1884 shows that the year to year variations cannot be related closely to parallel changes in the weather. But, this is not always easy to see, especially in the last 35 years.

Where the yield does not recover is when prolonged drought and hot weather produce an early light crop. While the harvest may be gathered in under ideal conditions the damage caused by shortage of water and then great heat has an irrevocable effect. The blazing summers of 1975 and 1976 are the axamples of this, crops suffered major setbacks with yields generally down by about 20 per cent and 25 per cent respectively. The adjacent cool wet years (1974 and 1977) were marked by heavy yields. The one example of variable weather having a major impact is the extraordinary year of 1947, Hers the combination of

In line now for master of the ratings?

I learn that this year's Dimbleby Lecture on BBC Television is to be given by Lord Denning, Master of the Rolls and our longest-serving judge. The prestigious lecture, created in memory of the late Richard Dimbleby and now in its ninth year, is to be broadcast live from the Royal Society of Arts

The lectures have established themselves as a controversial and newsworthy snapbox for eminent speakers, who in the past have included Lord Annau, Sir Robert Mark, Jack Jones and Lord Rothschild. The stan-dard was well maintained last dard was well maintained last year by Roy Jenkins; who in a dissertation entirled Home. Thoughts from Abroad, floated his ideas on the need for a centre party and dropped taptalizing hints that he might return to British political life.

Denning now aged 81, ought to be good value too. He has chosen as his theme The Misuse of Power, and he ought to have some interesting things to say, particularly in view of some of the cases involving trade unionists he has prehis light and his opinions under the customary ermine clock of judicial discretion. Last year he published The Discipline of Law, in which he freely discussed the reasons for his judgments in a number of his more noteworthy cases. There were mutterings around the lons of Court at the time that no one but Denning could have got way with such a thing.

He may be the trade union movement's least favourite judge, and his rulings may have been overturned by the Lords on nine consecutive occasions in the past two years, but he does not appear to mind in the slightest. Having become a best-selling author at the age of 80, he is now set to become a star of the small screen at 81. It wouldn't surprise me if he makes a record next.

FIME, a public finance company for the development of Southern Italy, for 1/3.

It is known that most of the Southern italian enterprises are of small-medium dimensions. These enterprises taken as a whole have an appreciable production capacity and good technological know-how that allows for market competitive products. However, lack in financial capacity and international experience prevent them from playing an important and continuous role in the world market.

Fime Trading has been constituted with the purpose of overcoming these limits.

Fime trading intent is to play the role of a Pursi asing Centre for Southern Italy goods and for the foreign markets, thus developing a two-way trade to and from Southern Italy. To accomplish the company fundamental targets, Fime

The third objection to the present House of Lords is that there is an unlimited right of nomination to it. This not only opens the way to Mr Benn's thousand new peers. It also means that the government of the day-is in a position to tilt the balance of the House's: composition to its own satisfaction, even when its purposes are less dramatic than the abolition of the second chamber. It would be much better to have a House with an elected majority and a nominated minority, roughly of the proportions of two thirds to one third. If this arrangement were adopted, it would follow that the number of appointed members would have to be restricted. This could be done either by limiting the number who could be nominated in any one year or by ensuring that the proportions nominated members should always accord with the balance parties in the House of Commons.

An upper chamber composed elected and nominated members could be compared with the old system of local government when there were elected majori-ties and a minority aldermen, who made a valuable contribution in terms of experience and continuity and who should never have been abolished. for Fife Central (Labour) Sir. Contrary to Mr Heffer (article, October 6), I did not find it a "privilege" at the Labour Party Conference to see decent hard working Members of Parliament like Will Rodgers, David Owen and Jack Ashton booed and hissed and slowhandelapped. It was no privilege to watch some Trade Union leaders being actually threatened with phy-

So far as the party leadership is concerned, over a long period now Mr Callaghan has been humiliated and kicked in the teeth by National and kicked in the teeth by National Expensive Committee members and others. Now they are licking his boots, urging him to stay on as leader—until the game is properly fixed. But if he stays on, Mr Heffer himself has repeatedly said that he would oppose Jim. Why the change.

Mr Callaghan will know hetter than most the purpose of these manoeuvres. He must not fall for them. He must not be allowed to fall for them. He should go now, quickly. The Parliamentary Labour Party must get on with its job of electing a Parliamentary Leader of its choice—just like other Labour Groups all over the land elect their own leaders, it would be intolerable if the party in Parliament had thrust on it a leader in whom it had no confidence. The truth is, the Labour Party is in turmoil because ever since the last election it has been engaged in torrents of double talk No one has seriously considered in depth and objectively all the in depth and objectively all the things that are wrong. For the last 18 months, the self-styled Left has been determined so to rig things as to ensure their permanent accession to control of the party, and thing it all on the specious claim that all was designed to "demo-cratize" the party. It's time all that humbug and hypocrisy ceased. It's getting very late in the day. Yours sincerely W. W. HAMILTON,

House of Commons. October 6.

From Projessor G. L. Rogers Sir, Mr Vernon Bartlett (October 4) as usual puts his finger on the central point. The Labour Party's decision to have mandatory reselection of MPs is of the most profound constitutional significance.

The Labour Party no longer believes in representative Parliamentary democracy. It wishes to mentary democracy. It wishes to replace the House of Commons by legislative conference of delegates pledged in advance to carry out the nstructions of the small group which selects them.

Golden age of drinking

From Mr R. K. French Sir, Alexander the Great may or may not have drunk excessivery, but he certainly encouraged others to do so. The story of Alexander's great, drinking competition deeply impressed subsequent generations and particularly the medical men sissance Europe. " Alexander Seu a prise, many fell, many died " as William Harvey told the Royal Collège of Physicians in 1617. The compenitors drank unmixed wine (the drink of the true toper, as your correspondent observes) and 35 of them died at once; the winner survived for four days only, having consumed four congil, that is, according to Harvey, some 40 pints. It was clear to the renaissance doctors that the Golden Age had truly passed. These heroes of old. the 16th century anatomist Sylvius tells us, not only drank unmixed wine in vast quantities, but did so at a draught without pousing for breath: they had not only large stomachs and hard heads, but enormous lungs it was also clear that deseneration of the human race bad quickly set in: Cicero's sou. although the most noted tippler of his age, some centuries later, was but a bicongius (we can translate as Two Gallon Tully) and the stomach, lungs and chest of modern man rere puny besides those of Alexandrian times. This process of degeneration explained how it was that Mile of ancient Croton could carry a bull round the stadium on one breath and then at once eat it, while Harvey's friend Wilkinson of Trinity College Cambridge could only menage a "piec of ye spitt". No doubt modern Fellows of Trinity ave more degenerate still.

From Mr B. C. Brookes Sir, in your leader "The dark side of Britain" (October 4), you rightly point to the decay of our national institutions as a cause, of disturbing aspects of our present political life. But you omit to point to Parliament itself as the institution which most argently needs to adapt itself to changing needs.

The "prudent Conservatives" to whom you address your leader should take note of Mr Benn's lervent advocacy of greater democracy in our politics. While they have the power to do so, they should intro-duce proportional representation for Parliamentary elections. Yours faithfully, B. C. BROOKES, 64 Abbots Gardens, N2.

It is certainly not any member of the Vestey family who availed himself of the letter of the law and spurned its spirit. On the other hand, the Treasury and the Inland Revenue, who must have aware in 1948 that the Law Lords had given a ruling in the Congreve case that contradicted the spirit of the legislation, did not go pack to Purliament, as they might have done, in order to correct the letter of the law. Instead, they enforced an interpretation that led to results which have been con-demned by one of the Law Lords, Lord Wilberforce, as "arbitrary, potentially unjust, and funda-mentally unconstitutional. #### Education proposals From the Chief Education Officer of Sheffield

Sir, Professor Cox's letter (October 2) on private education seems to be somewhat simplistic. "The liberty somewhat simplistic. In a liberty of parents to educate their children as they see fit "can be fulfilled in the exact sense of his own words only if parents see to the task themselves. If they delegate it to a school however they evidently cede a certain part of their "liberty".

But there is more than one way for them to maintain a hold over the rest of their influence and it seems to be a rather precipitate conclusion on the part of Professor Cox that the only location for this is likely to be in independent schools. He ars to ignore another alternative, larger and perhaps more sophi-sticated. This is the pursuit of accountability through open government of schools and through strong parental representation on school enverning bodies, where curriculum issues can be thrashed out and offered to consensus. - -

From Lord George Lloyd Sir, Confirming Mr Osmond's article (Midland Diary, September 23), the ice house at Leeds Castle depended largely on straw for insulation and is 20 feet deep. As at Hafod (letter, October 6), it was in use in the early years of the century and, indeed, up to the out-break of the First World War. However, although the brickwork is considered very old, it is still in perfect condition.

the legal requirement in the 1980 Education Act for parent representation on governing bodies (as was also the intention of the previous Labour Government's Education Bill lost from view at the last general election) is a late though nevertho-less welcome realization, in part, of the Taylor committee's proposals.

Ice house at Leeds

Mr Cooper, clerk of the works to the late Lady Baillie, who started work at Leeds Castle in 1912 at the

hy your correspondence, it has been decided to show the ice house to some of the visitors to the castle, including school children on educational tours.

The use of insulation is very ancient, for Professor Braudel in The Mediterronean writes of long Mediterranean history of 'snow water offered by Saladin to Richard the Lionheart", and of the bulk transport of snow and ice by sea from the Syrian and Lehanese ountains to the consuming centres, which explains the early development of the art of ice-cream in Italy". Thus it seems that cooling food and wine was practised on a considerable scale a thousand years ago. If communications had been better between the Mediterranean Bishop Odo of Bayeux received Leeds from William the Conqueror and established his vineyard there soon after 1066 (recorded in Domesday Book in 1086 and replanted on the same site by the Foundation in May 1980), perhaps he would have made an ice house as well!

Grasping the nettle of iuvenile crime

From Mr John Gittins Sir, The hudge-podge of irrelevance in the Government's White Paper on crime and young people is worthy of the Labour Party Conference. By this I mean that it steams from ideology rather than wisdom, that its practical formulation is grossly impracticable, and that we, the public, who are vitally affected, will wonder (to echo Mr Alan Fisher) "what the hell has been going on " in all these months of consultation and thought.

We have found that locking up doesn't work, so now we are going to have more of it for shorter periods. The "wider powers" to be given to the courts depend on a myth of diagnostically perceptive magistrates prescribing largely non-existent facilities. The rebellious young are to be tamed by a ritualistic demonstration that they are displeasing their spluttering elders.

The problem is too serious for this kind of amateurish posturing. We are dealing with our most valuable asset—our young people—and since 1908, when the first signs of legislative insight into their problems appeared, we have consistently provided resources that are inadequate, particularly in quality, and have directed them at the

The plain fact is ther, once a delinquent pattern has been established in a youngster, all our experience shows that we are powercases, by short-term methods—and certainly not by coercion. The conclusion is irresistible: that the only effective way to deal with juvenile crime is to prevent it. This requires intelligent, thorough and cooperative action at the first signs of trouble. It means mobilizing people of skill, imagination and porpeople of skill, imagination and par-sistence who will treat youngsters as individuals. These people exist, and in considerable numbers, among teachers, relatives, and the many community resources, it is com-paratively easy to identify the children at risk. But instead of focusing sharply on them, assessing their situations in realistic detail, and mobilizing the intensive help that is necessary, we label, separate, and hope that some sort of friendly penal establishment will ultimately do the trick. The business of prevention is not easy. It requires, a degree of com-munity and professional coopera-tion that can emerge only under rigorous leadership by small-scale experiment. What the Government doing is to perpetuate exactly the opposite approach. It has never worked and it nover will. Yours faithfully, JOHN GITTINS. 8 Station Road.

Nuclear arms depots From the Norwegian Ambassador

Sir, In his letter published on Octo-ber 1. Mr Dmitri Ardamatsky writes: "The US also has dumps of equipment and arms, including nuclear arms depots, in Norway and Denmark, and activity in sphere has been intensified recently.

There are absolutely no nucleis arms depots in Norway (and Denmark), and in connection with the ongoing negotiation for storage in central Norway of heavy equipment for an American Brigade it has been stated categorically and officially that this will not include nuclear

The right to know

From the Director General of the Central Office of Information-Sir, There is something wrong in the logic of Peter Hennessy's article about the Government information service (September 30). He wants administrators to take over the information role so that journalists can find out what is happening in what he describes as "the most secretive administrative service in the world". Hardly a recipe for success, I suggest. The only quotes he can find to support his view are years old. The fact is that the information service has done much improve the flow of information the media and is constantly briding to break down undecessary reticence

Perhaps what Mr Hennessy really wants is for civil servants to be disloyal to the Ministers they sarve. If that is so I hope he will find that information officers and administrators alike will resist blandishments. JOHN GROVES, Central Office of Information, Hercules Road, SEI. October 2.

Melodic line From Dr A. C. Lynch

Sir, The London Diary (Sentember 30) regrets that British Rail, unlike its Chinese counterpart, does not provide music to celebrate the departure of its trains. But its predecessors did so. Samuel Smiles recorded that "though the usual stage-coach hugleman could not conveniently accompany the passengers, the trains were at first played out of the terminal stations by a lively tune performed by a trumpeter at the end of the platform; and this continued to he done at the Manchester Station until a comparatively recent date" (1857). And on the London to Greenwich line, "a band of musicians in the garb of the Beef-eaters was stationed at the London end, and another band at Deptford. For cheapness's sake the Deptford band was shortly superseded by a large barrel-organ, which played in the passengers; but when the traffic became established, the barrel-organ, as well as the beef-cater band at the London end, were both discon-Yours faithfully,

The main focus of concern is not so much profunity or indecency as violence, where the evidence of television's harmful influence on conduct is disturbingly strong. Sometimes the two channels give the impression that they are competing for viewers by bidding up the level of violence, unjusti fied either as art or as news, and often at times when children may be watching. To justify their independence, the authorities must satisfy the public better that they are responsive to these fears as their statutory responsibility dictates.

Two gold medals awarded for colourful trade exhibits in RHS flower show

By Our Horticulture Correspondent

The Royal Horricultural Society's The Royal Horticultural Society's flower show, together with the Alpine Garden Society, British National Carnation Society and Japan Society of London's Bonsal compeditions fill the New Hall, Weatminster, while the RHS fruit and vegetable show has taken all the space in the Old Hall in Vincent Square.

The Trade artiflity in the Now The trade exhibits in the Now the trade exhibits in the New Hall are varied and colourful and there is much to interest visitors. Two gold medals have been swarded, one to County Park Nursery, Hornchurch, the other to Dakleigh Cachus Products, Airesford.

County Park Nursery has created one of its delightful ministure rock gardens and planted it with a range of most interesting subjects. Just some worthy of note are a collection of hebes, with flowers in various colour shades from the palest to the darkest of blues, and others with variegated foliage. There is a fine example of Frankenia thymifolia, a pink flowering ground coverer, and an attractive ministure shrub of Leptospermum 'Wairers' with pink flowers. Several forms of rhodopoids are shown in flower, in various shades of pinks and mauves.

Oakleigh Cacrus Products have a large display of many types of cacri and succulents, showing the great variation in form and growth exhibited by these plants. There are collections of lithops, man-millarias in various types, some just coming into flower, several agaves, including Agave americana marginata, with yellow edged leaves. Sedum sitholdit, variegated leaves and pink flowers, Euphorbia spiendens "Minor", with red flowers, and Monvillea spegaciali Cristata", with its cock's comb-like growth, among the many plants were submitted for judging to the committees and only two received awards of ment. These were: Crocus hadriaticus white, from the Rev R. J. Elakeway-Phillips, Little Abington, and Dendrobium "Circe Gail', shades of purple, from Mr. D. Clulow. Blenchingley.

In the Old Hall the exhibits and competitive entries indicate that it has been a good year for fruit and vegetables. The RHS Garden, Wisley, has staged a decorative stand of over 100 varieties of dessert and cooking apples, illustrating many old and new popular varieties. Each dish is clearly labelled, indicating the source of origin, time of use and cultural habits.

In the competitive section for different kinds of fruit, Mr T. D. Baxendale, Chichester, was a conswept the board, being placed in almost all the classes be entered. His major achievements were win-ning first prizes for a collection of six varieties of bardy fruits; a collection of 12 dishes of apples and pears, four varieties each of and pears, four varieties accoordessert apples, cooking apples and dessert pears; six varieties of dessert apples; six varieties of cooking apples; and six varieties of dessert pears. The varieties of dessert apples he used in his winning entries included: "Ellison's Orange." Cox's Orange Pippin', "Wheeler's Russer, Laxton's Orange '. 'Cox's Orange Pippin',
 'Wheeler's Russet', 'Laxton's

Bitzabeth .

In the Affiliated Societies' Challenge Cup and George Monro Memorial Cup competitive classes, Pioner Horticultural Society won the former and the Leyton Allorment Society rite latter. Pinner staged an excellent display of 15 dishes of apples and pears, five varieties each of dessert pears. Leyton's beautifully arranged display of resetables showed a very taried collection. and illustrated how effectively and colourfully it is possible to arranga vegetables to catch the eye.

In the general competitive wegetable classes, Mr K. R. Clarke, Sittingbourne, was the successful vinner of the RHS Vegetable Cup for the highest aggregate of points in all classes. He was also awarded the Riddell Trophy for a collection of nine kinds of vegetables, showing fine specimens of Manumoth' onions, Tender and True' parsnips, "Red Globe' furnips. The Prince' beans, Berrier Reef 'cauliflowers, 'New Red Intermediate' CENTOES, 'Catrions' polatoes, 'Unrivalled Pink' callety and 'Mammoth' leckt.

The Alpine Garden Society's competition has plenty of epiries considering the type of summer those alpine plants have had to contend with, Major awards given include:

of the Japan Society of London did not attract many entries, though those displayed were of high quality. Mr P. D. Shields was a consistent first prize winner, and was also awarded the Chine. director, said. "But we have the men, the vehicles, and the expertise, and we shall be going out to expand our own business in the field." British Rail's decision, though tough in the short term, must be right. Of their f150m parcels business, collection and delivery is losing £38m on a rurnover of 540m-not the sort of loss British Rail (or anyone else for that matter) would want to stay with for long.

The decision means concentrating effort and investment elsewhere the Red Star express parcels business between stations turning over more than £32m a year, and trunking for the Post Office and others, worth nearly £80m. It adds up to sensible rationalization of the parcels industry, albeit the hard way.

Ford chief says import curbs must be imposed

Mr Philip Caldwell, the chairman of Ford Motors, said that United States car makers must have relief from Japanese imports during the industry's critical reconversion programme scheduled to last until the end

On the eve of hearings before the International Trade Commission on the car import prob-lem, Mr Caldwell criticized the Carter Administration for fail-ing earlier in the year to force the Japanese to limit volun-tarily the number of cars shipped to the United States. He said that every other country has informal or formal agreements to kimit imports. Bur the United States has almost no protection against a flood of imported cars, most of them from Japan.

To its case filed at the inter-national Trade Commission, Ford is asking for a ruling that the United States industry has been injured by greatly har-creased car imports from Japan, over the last pear and that the commission limits imports from Japan and elsewhere to 2 milion a year for several YERES: ...

The hearing starts tomorrow and is expected to last about three days. But as President Carter has already announced a final ruling will not be made until after the American election on November 29.

Mr Caldwell said that he cannot see how the commission could fail to find that the American industry has been injured considering the record unemployment in the industry and the 18-year low in domestic production of cars and trucks. Ford would prefer to see the Jananese restrain imports voluntarily, but because such action has been taken Rord felt, as a last resort, that it had to

House price increases are slowing

By Margaret Stone Evidence of the slowing of house price rises is accumulating. The latest Nationwide Building Society builteth indicates that prices rose on average by only a per cept in the third quarter of 1980—the process rate of increase for three lowest rate of increase for three years; : in some eress, notably Greater London, East Anglia; Wales and Scotland, house prices have scarcely moved at all during the period, while in Northern Ireland, they have fallen by 1 per cent.

What strength there is in the market is largely reserved for new houses which, in most regions, show an average increase of 3 per cent.

The slowdown in house price rises has not been accompanied by an equal slowdown in earn-ings, so the important ratio between average bouse prices and earnings has continued to fall from a peak of 3.7 at the end of 1979 to about 3.5 now.

But the greatest potential area for growth will be in the manufacture of special microchips. However, designers and the production plant will need to be close to the market place. This explains the recent retailing interests, which include elfridges in London, have done signifi-mily better than, for example, House of raser; its trading profits are down by 62 ar cent at £1.7m but this takes in an spected £2.2m loss from Wallis Fashion equired last February. The best performer has been Sears Villiam Hill berting chain. It made a remarkable recovery from last year's nonbetting season and announced trebled profits of £5.4m. It now remains to be seen how it will fare in the second half and no real forecasts can be made given the unpredictable nature of the business.

The engineering division was (textile machinery mainly) predictably hit by the recession. It lost £2.8m against losses of £777,000 last rime, but in the second half of last year the losses were £5m so effectively there is an improving trend. Now that Pickering Blackburn has been disposed of, the division is set for break even or a small loss in the second half. -

Traditionally, the second half at Sears contributes two thirds of profits. Christmas and January sales are all important. It is thus difficult to make any sensible forecast on the assumption, though, that profits change little from last year's £92.8m, the shares at 46p would be on a fully taxed p/e ratio of 9.6 and a potential yield of around 7 per cent assuming a 10 per cent rise in dividend. At this level they look a sound if unexciting hold, unless, of course, Sears does something in the near future to rationalize its activities away from its present unglamorous conglomerate image.

Margins

The usual stockbroking advice about Bejam is to buy or weakness but it seldom develops. This year alone the shares have risen from 55p to 99p at one point, and on yesterday's figures for the year to end June they climbed 4p to 97p, where the yield of 3.3 per cent reflects the rating. Progress is still virtually impossible to fault. In the first half-year pre-tax profits samped by nearly 50 per cent to £4.1m on a sales gain of 37 per cent. Margins widened from 4.7 per cent to 5.1 per cent. For the full year profits are 37 per cent ahead at £8.27m on a 33 per cent sales increase to £164m, with frozen food sales up 30 per cent to £142.7m. Margins held steady at 5 per cent. Remembering that the second six months compared with a half-year when bad weather and industrial trouble induced customers to stock up with frozen food, the ontrome is all the better.

Tax fell from £1.13m, to £673,000 thanks to capital allowances and stock relief, and the group, is confident of holding it down again this year. So net profits finished 55 per cent ahead at £7.5m, from which the 36 per cent bigger dividend costs only Bejam's strength is in the south which is still relatively unscathed by the recession. It is benefiting from a new generation of customers, buying fridge freezers rather than the more expensive bulk freezers; and it says that customers trading down leaves margins unharmed Competition from supermerkets is scanty, and the worst of war in groceries is over, leaving frozen foods with its traditional advantages. There are no signs of the sales increase slowing down. This year, moreover, Bejam should get something back from recent acquisitions, and with restaurants and other activities going well, profits will rise again. Sites are hard to come by, but the group is spending £1.37m on seven supermarkets from BAT, and recession elsewhere in food could reveal further opportunities.

• After setting the green light from the Monopolies Commission for its bid for Armitage Shanks only last week, Blue Circle Industries is making up for lost time: The new offer remains on the basis of a twofor six share exchange, with the option for share holders to take one BCI share and 305p cash for every six Armitage shares. Thanks to the sharp rise in BCI shares since the reference, the new offer values Armitage at 112p or £35m against the original 90p a share and only 48p just before the hid was announced last lanuary. the bid was announced last lanuary.

So the Government's delay has cost BC! ome 17m. And despite the current difficulties in the building materials sector BCI has not been so charlish as to try to revise the terms downwards. Clearly the presence of Ceramic Investments, which controls 29 per cent of Armitage, must have something to do with that since the last thing BCI wants is an acrimonious battle there. Originally Geranic was looking for 127p a share for its holding. But with the new offer set to go unconditional at 50 per cent, which BCI achieved last time round, it seems clear that the group will press ahead with or without the Lebonese.

Not the job Sir Francis expected

Argument and counter-argument about the structure of years, but the sequence of events which led directly to vesterday's announcement that Sir Francis Tombs-had-decided to resign as chairman of the Electricity Council began in January, 1976. -

مِكذا من رلامل

It was then that a report on the industry by a committee chaired by Lord Plowden was published. The report proposed basic changes in the industry.

'As it was structured then, and as it remains today, the pattern of the industry dated from the 1957. Electricity Act. For England and Wales it consists of the Central Electricity Generating Board, 12 great boards, concerned with distribution, and the Electricity Council, which acts as a confederal body for the industry

This, the Plowden committee concluded, had led to a basic Britain's electricity supply in weakness—"slow and cumber-dustry have raged for many some central policy-making caused by divided responsibilities and rigid statutory frame-work". What was proposed in its place was a single, unified corporation, with the CEGB and the area boards acting as Plowden.

> poration. Under the system which (and is stiff in force today) the generating board and the 12 area boards were all autonomous bodies responsible to the Secretary of State for Energy. In practice, they were expected to work together through the Electricity Council but the council had no powers to direct any heard chairmen to accept decisions agreed by the craers.

the Plowden proposal for a unified Central Electricity Board. He was in ited to become Electricity chairman of the Electricity Council from April 1, 1977; on the understanding that the structure of the industry would be changed by Esislation along the lines recommended by Plowden.

The Labour Government, with Mr Anthony Wellswood Benn as Secretary of State for Energy, announced its intention nergy, announce he appropriate legislation, and a draft-Bill way, published as a White Paper in April, 1978. The Bill was not introduced before the change of government in 1979.

State's ." main policy adviser" was not enough for Sir Francis. On his appointment in 1977 he had made it clear (to Mr Benn) that he had no wish to be Electricity Council chairman under the terms of the 1957 Act. This Act, he agreed with the Plowden committee, was unsatisfactory. Before Mr Howell's July announcement Sir Francis had again stressed his opposition to the proposal to leave the industry structure as it was. He is convinced that the "essential structural problems" will re-

Sir Michael Edwardes, chair- deal with the world we live in man of BL, is quite clear about it, will pay for itself in a manter man of BL, is quite clear shoul the importance of the Metro. launched today, to the survival of his embattled motor group. It is, he says, "the litmus test" of everything he has tried to do since he arrived at BL nearly three years ago.

" It is not just the production of a new car to boost our depressed market share. Metro is a test of our ability to introduce entirely new standards of quality and reliability in a new plant with every automated advantage.

"The removal of restrictive practices, vastly improved in-dustrial relations, demanning by 30,000 jobs in 30 months, new levels of productivity to put us on a par with the best Europeans—in fact, it is a rest of our ability to compete at every level.

If Metro fails it will not necessarily pull down the whole of the group. But it will spell the end of BL's 1,800 strong dealer network in its present form. Few dealers could survive on Jaguar and Rover alone. Dealers who have driven the new car are impressed. They wanted and believe they have got, a modern batchback small

The customer validation building is the final stage in the Matro trim and assembly line. The main body building line is in the new West Works, which houses the most advanced robot and multi-weld body mak-ing plant in Britain. This area will be the test bed for some of EL's most controversial personnel policies.

Industry observers were immensely sceptical about the introduction of such advanced technology. It required an entirely new approach by workers to demarcation boundaries stubbornly defended in countiess inter-union clashes, and, if it ever got off the ground, it would be a constant source of friction, they said.

That prediction has still to duction. Present output is only some 2,000 Metros a week, compared with the plant's full capa-city of 6,500. But management has already obtained shop-floor approval for flexibility in workpeyond anything schieved The most marked improve-a very competitive new car and a head-on attack on the industrial relations problems which have dogged BL for years. But is it enough?

Has Sir Michael sufficient to convince a Con-servative Government pursuing a ricid monetary policy that it should go on pumping money into a company which lost £155m in the six months ended June this year? BL had already received £75m more than the £1,000m state aid requested by the 1975 Ryder Report.

The group is concentrating on lessening its dependence on the ten market in the longer term. But this year's final profit performance depends ulti-mately on a recovery in the tea price—for which "rise omens are not terribly bright". Mr William Lamond, the finance director, said yesterday. Group interim sales slipped a fraction to £46.4m, Pinlay including the "substantially tax sheltered" £1.5m profit on the sale of its Lasmo shares, giving it a net interest credit within the United Kingdom. Total net borrowings are little hanged from the year end.

The interim dividend is 9.1 per cent up at 4.2p gross. The board intends at least to maintain last year's total payout.
In Kenya, Finlay's tea crop is down and prices have been poor, particularly in London thanks to destocking by British blenders, and higher world tea production. The Indian and Bangladeshi plantations are expected to do better this year. Their figures are never included at the half year.

Alaska Interstate Company

Notice of Redemption-6% Convertible Debenjures due 1987 (Originally Issued by Alaska Interstate International Finance Corporation) Conversion Rights Expire November 14, 1980

To Holders of 6% Convertible Debentures due 1987:

Notice is hereby given that ALASKA INTERSTATE COMPANY (the "Company"), successor to ALASKA INTER-STATE INTERNATIONAL FINANCE CORPORATION ("AKI Finance"), has called for redemption and will redeem on November 14, 1980 (the "Redemption Date") all of its 6% Convertible Debentures due 1987 (the "Debentures") issued under an Indenture, dated as of August 1, 1972, between AKI Finance, the Company as Guarantor, and Bankers Trust Company, Trustee, outstanding on the Redemption Date at a redemption price of 103.25% of the principal amount of the Debentures together with interest accrued to the Redemption Date in the amount of $17.17 per $1000 principal amount of the Debentures, making a total redemption price of $1049.67 per $1000 in principal amount of the Debentures (the "Redemption Price"). Interest will cease to accrue on the Debentures from and after the Redemption Date. demption Price"). Interest will cease to accrue on the Debentures from and after the Redemption Date.

The Debentures may be converted at the option of the holders thereof at any time up to, but not later than, the close of business on November 14, 1980 into fully paid and non-assessable shares of Common Stock of the Company ("Common Stock") at a conversion price of $22.25 per share of Common Stock, resulting in a conversion rate of approximately 44.9438 shares of Common Stock per $1000 in principal amount of the Debentures.

The Company urges you to consider the following factors in deciding whether and when to convert your Debentures: 1. So long as the market price of the Common Stock exceeds $23.36 per share, the market value of the shares of Common Stock into which the Debentures are convertible is greater than the Redemption Price of $1049.67 per each. $1000 in principal amount of the Debentures.

2. Debenturcholders who do not convert their Debentures into Common Stock prior to the close of business on November 14, 1980 will lose the right to convert their Debentures. Payment of the Redemption Price will be made on or after the Redemption Date upon presentation and surrender of such Debentures, together with all coupons maturing after the Redemption Date. Conversion of Debentures may be effected up to the close of business on the Redemption Date by surrender of such Debentures, together with all coupons maturing after the Redemption Date. The notice of election to convert the Debentures found on the back of each Debenture certificate must also be executed by the holder of such Debentures. No adjustments in respect of interest or dividends will be made upon conversion. No fractional shares or scrip representing fractional shares will be issued upon conversion, but payment of an amount of cash equal to such fraction multiplied by the last reported sale price of the Common Stock on the New York. Stock Exchange-Composite Transactions System on the date of conversion (or by such other method as provided by the Indenture) will be made in lieu of any such fractional share.

Debentures may be surrendered for conversion, and presentation and surrender of any Debentures for redemption may be made, at any of the following bank offices:

ir Anthony Princip for the licant; Mr David Fletcher for council.

Ils LORDSHIP in a reserved amount after a bearing in chama, said that after the applicant I formed an association with Hopkins he had taken employing as a farm labourer in Angust, 9, and had been provided with nuss on the farm. He had diven notice in rember, 1979. The farmer had nined possession of the house. Hopkins had applied under the sing (Homeless Persons) Act accommodation, but the counconsidered that both he and applicant were intentionally neless because he had volunity given up his job. They a nevertheless provided with porary accommodation, he applicant applied for accommistion under the Act, making lear that Mr Hopkins would reit. The council decided that had become homeless intenially because sie had acquired in her common, law bund's decision to terminate employment knowing that their memodation was tied to his sloyment.

immodation was ded to his stoyment, he council argued that the me of the Act was to look at family unit and provide mandation for the unit, and it was the maintent that where one lost of a family unit was should be so frested. The lit of that approach was that re a man and a woman were no together as man and wife, council was entitled to reject application by the woman rely because there had been a vinus application by the man it has been found to have one homeless interniously, or the applicant it was continued to the same applicant it was continued to the same applicant it was continued to the same applicant it was continued to have one homeless interniously.

or the applicant it was conded that it was her conduct ne which should be considered that if was wrong to take it account a previous decision kerning his man with whord was living. The council's ison in her case should be ished.

Solicitors: Harding, Roothum & was living. The council's he dismissed, is not near the approach would be dismissed.

Solicitors Harding, Rootham & Solicitors Harding, Rootham & Stated, the council said, if a Bradley, Barnstaple; Mr J. G. ated, the council said, if a Bradley, Barnstaple;

North Devon District husband or a man living with a woman could intentionally make in Justice Woolf the family homeless, and then the wife or the woman concerned could make an application, and haranteen the woman with the beautiful to be within the within could make an application, and because she rather than he made the application the family would be treated differently from the way it would have been treated if he had made the application. The man would receive benefits under the Act which it was never intended, that he should receive because he had rendered himself because he had rendered himself intentionally homeless. The test of imentionally home-less was contained in section 17, and by section 1(1) a person was homeless if he had no accommoda-homeless if he had no accommoda-tion: which he, together with any other person who normally resides with him as a member of his family or in cir-cumstances in which the housing authority consider it reasonable for that person to reside with him. "was entitled to occupy."

than. "was entitled to occupy. That definition and other provisions in the Act made it clear that a council had to have regard to, the family unit. In particular sections 2(1)(a) and (6), 2(2), 5(1)(a) (d) and (fil), and section 16 made it clear that it was the policy of the Act to keep families together where possible."

As it was to the family unit that the council were to have regard, it would have been understandable. If Parliament had expressly provided that the application should be made by the family unit and that the question should be whether or not the family should be 'regarded' it in the property should be 'regarded' it is the property should be 'regarded' it is the property of the propert family should be regarded as naving become homeless intensonally. However, as the council canceded, there were no express which provided that, where a man and woman were living together. If one of them became homeless intentionally, the other should also be so treated. Such a construction of socion 17 was not possible.

Clearly Parliament could have thosen to breat a woman who had become homeless intentionally as though she was tained by his conduct. Alternatively, Parliament could adopt the approach that, albeit the man was indeserving, because the woman was not hersall homeless intentionally, he was to benefit because she was antitled to the additional rights of aperson who was not homeless intentionally and she could only obtain those rights if he bene-should close its eyes to the conduct of the other members of the family. On the contrary the fact that the Act, required consideration of the family unit as a whole indicated that it would be perfectly proper in the midiary case for the sutbority to look at the family as a whole and assume, in the absence of material, which indicated the contrary, where the conduct of one, member of the family was such that he should be regarded as having become homeless intentionally, that was conduct to which the other mambers of the family were a party.

His Loriship said that as the His Lordship sald ther as the council had found that the appli-cant had acquiesced in her

The board joined. Sean Michael Kavanagh, whose appany had carried out the work, third party and it was held that rd party proceedings were not tute barred although they had en commenced more than six ars after the acts complained of d been performed.

Mr Richard Fowler for Green.

MR JUSTICE DILLON said that British Railways Board sought join Mr Kavanagh as third party an action brought by R. H. een & Silley Weir Ltd after sublence had occurred to their land Blackwell Yard, Poplar. In 70 Mr Kavanagh, trading as tegrated Rechamation and Dredg. Company, carried our tilling erations to a railway cutting adjacent land belonging to this Rail. By clause 3 of a ter the company agreed that twithstanding any supervision ren or approval expressed by board, the company was to be sponsible for, and release and ainst, all liability for loss, costs a expense which might arise in nsequence of the existence of e agreement or of anything done nsequence or the assistant of a greenest or of anything done a result of such agreement wsoever such injury, loss, mage, costs or expense be used whether by the board, its rvants or agents or otherwise.

crants or agents or otherwise. Green complained that as the relative support for their joining premises, they had suffered damage for which the board is responsible. They commenced occedings in 1974, but a statement of claim was not issued until 177. The board sought to have a actor dismissed for want of osecution.

H. Green & Silley Weir Ltd it was. On the bearing of that listic. Green would be at liberty to argue on behalf of the board, and undertook in the event of the board, and undertook in the event of the board to discontinua their action the whereby a company accepts or consent to its being dismissed. or consent to in being dismissed.

Mr. Kavanagh subsequently alleged that the proceedings against him were barred by section, all of the Limitation Act, 1939.

Thus the unusual situation arose the which the board argued that their own dains was statute barred. In determining the issue reference was made to the general rule that a person seeking to enforce an in-density highr to so only after the fact and extent of his own liability had been determined.

In the light of the general rule his Lordship considered Control District Properties Ltd v. Jenner & Sons Ltd (1976)) 2 Hoyd's Rep. 728). In that case Mr. Justice Swanwick held that third party subcontractors, antering into interest to their land after fill superations had been carried to nadjoining land belonging British Rall. The board joined. Sean Michael Kavanagh, whose apany had carried out the work, apany had carried out the work and party proceedings were not ture barred although they had en commenced more than six are the acts complained of the position of work and he concluded that though equity, safeguarded that though equity safeguarded the position of work and he concluded that though equity safeguarded that though equity safeguarded the position of work and he concluded that though equity safeguarded the position of work and he concluded that though equity safeguarded the position of work and he concluded that though equity safeguarded the position of work and he concluded that though equity safeguarded the position of a stife was in favour of the proposition that a cause of ascient fills ascertainment, of the fact and extent of liability of the person who was to be indemnified. In Bosind, a Larsen (1956) 1 Lloyd's Rep 22), concerning the position of a ship under order of charterers, Mr. Inguice McNair held that the shipowners' cause of action arose long before the claim against liability and reimbarsement against sums paid. The shipowner was dannified as soon as he came that twithstanding any supervision are approval expressed by. His Lordship, accepting that that liability and not the payment. His Lordship, accepting that the decision was irreconcilable with that of Mr Justice Swanwick, referred to the Court of Appeal case of Post Office v Norwick Union, Fire Insurance Ltd (1367) 2 Q B 363) which Indicated that

Union Fire insurance Lia (1287)

2 Q B 363) which indicated that where insurance was taken our against liability to a third party rights were created as soon as events happened which might lead to a claim being made but they could not be enforced until liability had been established.

Following the reasoning in that case anth of Mr Justice Swanwick, his Loydship held that time did not run against the British Railways, Board in favour of Mr Kayanagh until the board's liability to Green had been established and ascertained. The wording of clause 3 of the agreement was in wide general terms and came within the general rule relating to indemnity clauses. His Lordship, preferring the conclusions of Mr Justice Swanwick, declared that the third party claim by the hoard against Mr Kayanagh was not hastite harred. osecution.

In 1979 an order was made with consent of Green and the consent of Green and the and came within the general term of the action the general for the action in the general for the action in the general for the action in the general for the consistence of the continue to take the constant of Mr Justice Swanwick of party proceedings against the company and, simuld the company and the com

Wide appeal of old farmhouses

Old farmhouses continue to meet many people's needs for a good country home, and remain popular in the market. In the nature of things such buildings are very much part of the countryside in which they stand. They are usually of moderate size and with a long working life behind them have a no-nonsense kind of layout which often lends itself well to up-dating to modern standards.

A very good example is provided by Griffins Farmhouse, Park Lane, West Grinstead, Sussex.

The property is on the West Grinstead Park Estate which bas recently changed hands and is surplus to requirements. It dates from the 18th century and is typical both of its kind and its location. Construction is of brick under a tile roof, but some modernization is needed.

Accommodation includes three reception rooms and four bedrooms and a feature of the property are the grounds which contain a number of mature trees and a pond. Among the outbuildings is an old Sussex barn and all told there are about 14 acres of land. A price in the region of £90,000 is being asked through Strutt and Parker. Another good example is Rye Farmhouse, in Hollands Lane, at Henfield, in West Sussex. This one probably has 16th century origins, with later additions. It is mainly brick built, with a tiled roof and clay hanging tiles to the upper parts. In this case, considerable modernization and improvement has been carried out. There are two reception rooms, a kitchen with a separate utility room and four bedrooms.

Outside are a large lean-to store and a new four-bay farm. building with loose boxes. The garden and two paddocks extend in all to some six acres. The price is £89,500 and the agents. are Weller Eggar, of Horsham.

Different in character but also reflecting its location is Spring Farmhouse, at Hanwell, near Banbury, Oxfordshire.

This is a stone-built house with slate roof and is thought to date from the 18th century.

Griffins Farmhouse, West Grinstead, Sussex, some modernization required, for sale at about £90,000 with 14 acres.

Features include stone fireplaces and numerous exposed timbers. It has three main reception rooms, a study and six bedrooms as well as good attics.

Outside there are extensive traditional farm buildings which include two stone barns. The garden runs to about threequarters of an acre and the property is due to come to auction next month, unless sold privately. It is expected to make something in the region of £90,000. A further two acres of land would also be available if. required.

The sale is through Lane Fox and Parmers, of Middleton Cheney, Banbury.

A more substantial property is Lyefield Farm, between Ewhurst and Forest Green, in Surrey. The house dates from the 16th century and has a grade two listing as being of special architectural or historic inter-

It is constructed with a brick and timber frame with clay tile hanging and leaded light windows. Features include numerous exposed beams and a Priest's hole" above the drawing room fireplace.

There are three main reception rooms, a study, a large farmhouse kitchen, a breakfast room, six bedrooms and three attic rooms with scope for conversion into a staff flat. There are landscaped gardens around the house, plus extensive farm buildings, some eight enclosures and a paddock.

In all, the property runs to about 53 acres. Offers over £200,000 are being asked through Savills. A three-bedroomed bungalow might also be available. Another interesting old property is The Old Manor House,

in Lymington, Hampshire, which also has a grade two listing. It is regarded as having at least pre-Cromwellian. origins and is built of brick under a tiled roof, with more recent additions at the rear in the same materials.

. There is scope for moderniza-tion, but the accommodation includes three reception rooms, a large combined kitchen and breakfast room, four main bed-also has a grade two listing. This provides a large games room With a garden of about 12 acres, the property is expected to make between £125,000 and £130,000. The agents are Jackson and Jackson, of Lymington.

An altogether different proposition is Vine. House, in Moor-lands Drive, Pinkneys, Green, Maidenhead, Berkshire. This is a pleasant house built in 1962 in the Georgian style by the present vendors, and has an entrance portico with tuscan pillars flanked by arched windows.

Inside is a large reception hall, and two main reception rooms. Upstairs there is a galleried landing with wrought-iron balustrade with a carved oak handrail, a main bedroom and bathroom suite, plus two further rooms and a second bathroom.

The garden, which contains a large fish pond, together with a small orchard totals about two Offers in the region of £190,000 are being asked through Giddy and Giddy, of Maidenhead. semi-detached two-bedroomed cottages, one let, would also be available.

Another virtually modern property is Stumblewood, at rooms, a dressing room and two Twyford near Horstead Keenig attic bedrooms. Outside is a large old timber small, older cottage, which is and brick thatched barn which about 1975 was largely rebuilt and extended by a self-containe anneze a year or so ago. Here the accommodation is the main house includes two reception rooms, a combined bit chen, breakfast room and plan room, a main bedroom and bathroom suite, three further bedrooms and a second bath. The annexe is entirely sell, contained and is on two floors with a good-sized living room two bedrooms and its own lat-chen and bathroom. The gardens and grounds extend to about 20 acres and include seven paddocks, a plantation of larch and spruce and an area of mixed woodland. Offers in the region of £137,500 are being asked through Braxtons, of Tunbridge Wells and Uckfield Another modern property is Woodend, The Ridge, at Epson Surrey, adjoining the RAC golf course. It has three reception rooms, a main bedroom and bath. room suite, four further hed. rooms and another two bath.

Offers in the region of £225,000. are being asked through Knight Frank and Rutley, and Michael Everett and Co, of Epsom Gerald Eh
